Foreword

The editors of The Interlachen present with great pleasure the 1940 book with the hope that each of you will find some incident or scene which will express the meaning of this college year to you. That expression has been the goal to which we directed our efforts.

In writing this last piece of copy there is the awkward experience of attempting to express graciously our gratitude to those whose conspicuous labors have given the book its distinguishing features. To them we say thanks a million!

They are: Dr. K. Gibson Weihe for his advisory supervision and for his contributions to the literary and art work on the theme; Miss Jane Golding for the tedious preparation of copy; Randy Jones for pounding the pavement soliciting advertisements; the other staff members for their various amounts of work; and the student body for its patience in the picture taking and editing of this book.

Cover Design

Still, white and deeply poignant, the Hindu Temple stands in the midst of the Garden of Meditation, a continual memorial to the man, Bishop Frederick B. Fisher, who gave it to us. It is therefore eminently fitting that a picture of this temple, which plays so significant a role in campus life, should introduce the color features of the 1940 Interlachen.

Theme

HEAR YE! HEAR YE!

"Sound, sound the clarion; fill the fife!
To all the circumambient world proclaim.
'One tiny hour of glorious life
Is worth an age without a name!'"

Embooked now before you, as beautifully as we could book it, is the person-colored activity of our latest College Year (Flourish Banner and Trumpet!).

Every mother's Son and Daughter enrolled on the college books for 1939-1940 is represented somehow in the Book. (Roll, Drum! Ring, Bell!).

Quintessence of Youthful Life Hail! (Huzzahs!).

Like no other day ever, is this Day; like no other year, this Year; like no other book ever, this Book! (Strike up the Band!).

Gone is the Age of Iron, of Bronze, of Jazz; gone are the Tremulous years of the Thirties; gone, the furtive Idealisms, the Sham Cloister. This is the Book of New Beginnings, the latest Syllable of Recorded Time. (Blow, Bugle!).

And now as the Forties come roaring in with War again staining the far, dark Horizon we Youthful Ones do here denounce that Evil and its brood—the Hypocrisy, the Greed, the ruthless Strides of tiger Power, the social Scurvies, the smug and leaden-footed Traditionalisms, all the Razzle-dazzle, all the Trivial and Shoddy. We ask our Elders to join us honestly in seeing Life steadily and seeing it whole. For we are in a perilous Drama together as Tailors under Fate. Let us be true to One Another lest the Drama again turn tragic. (Cymbals, Clash!).

A Yearbook is like a revolving Door . . . through it pass the Months, as on Review; and through it like Figures haunted by sweet Ghosts, we also pass, we Youthful Ones, out into the world of After-days. (Kettle-drums, beat!).

Reader, Viewer, be gentle . . . we've tried to represent You in your best Bib and Tucker, so to speak, as the Months in 1939-40 drew you after them, filling the Campus with Color and Drama. Blame not us if you aren't beautiful—blame Heredity—or the perversity of Mother Nature. (Soft Music, Play!).

ANNIE M. PFEIFFER

The 1940 Interlachen is dedicated to Annie M. Pfeiffer, who is making possible the beautiful chapel designed by Frank Lloyd Wright. This chapel, which is the first building in the E. Stanley Jones Educational Foundation, will be known as the Annie M. Pfeiffer chapel. The editors desire to express the appreciation of the trustees, faculty, alumni, and students for this beautiful gift from a great lover of mankind.

To the Students of Florida Southern College

Dear Friends:

First of all I want to congratulate the editors and business managers of the 1940 edition of The Interlochen. I believe that you will agree with me that it is an attractive book.

To the seniors this will be an invaluable book as the years unfold. It will bring back to them thousands of happy memories. The college will miss them next year. As they go out to represent Florida Southern I want to wish for each one of them much satisfaction and enjoyment in all of their undertakings.

To you who will return next year I want to wish for you a happy summer. Next year will be better for us. Our beautiful chapel will be finished, and the new industrial arts building will be under construction. The whole E. Stanley Jones Foundation will begin to take shape.

As your president I take great pride in all of your successes. I hope you will always keep in mind that I shall ever remain

Your friend,

LUDD M. SPIVEY

A CONFERENCE

Dramatis Personae: President Summa Cum Laude, Deans Magna Cum Laude, Cum Laude, and Laude.

Pres. S. C. L.: Gentlemen, we are confronted with a serious situation. Our seniors, with one voice, have informed me that they refuse to graduate! I'm flabbergas . . . er . . . ah . . . nonplussed. Not in fifty years' experience have I known a senior to shudder at the thought of leaving college with his sheepskin under his arm, his confident gaze piercing the sky of the future, his—

Dean M. C. L.: Now, now . . . easy does it. It may be just spring madness . . . or vitamin deficiency . . . or (laughing) the New Deal.

Pres. S. C. L.: That's just it! The specter of W. P. A. rears its ugly . . . looms before them. They want to remain tied to Alma Mater's apron strings all their lives! We're stuck with them! We've made them as happy here as . . . as pigs in clover.

Dean Laude (in distant reverie): We had my wife's brother and his family to dinner one night. That was years ago. (Sadly) They're still with us.

Dean Cum Laude (facetiously): Confucius say sheepskin passe. No longer skin you love to touch.

Pres. S. C. L. (sternly): My good man, your levity is ill-timed. Try to understand the seriousness of the picture. In years to come, unless we solve this problem now, our campus will be crawling with thousands of ungraduated students, beginning all over again as freshmen, shoving eagerly into lectures, drinking thirstily at college fountains . . . and incidentally, rendering our food supply null and void!

Dean Laude: We'll get social security for them . . . for all of us!

Dean M. C. L.: Why not? Think . . . this is a blessing in disguise. We'll rear a new race of men and women unspotted by the world . . . Promethean giants!

(A commotion is heard outside. Excited voices, shuffling of feet, then a hush, as the President of the Senior Class enters, humble, apologetic).

P. of S. C.: Sirs, it's all a mistake! We were, ah . . . a bit headlong. I mean headstrong, that is, precipitant . . .

Pres. S. C. L.: Try a simple word, you ninny . . . out with it!

P. of S. C.: Well, we want to graduate after all. Couldn't stay on in school here, by any means. My girl says she'll marry me, and she's persuaded her dad to give me a job. And the idea's caught on! All the seniors are working on it. Except a few . . . and they are affiliated with the Fuller Brush Co., Real Silk Hosiery Co., and one or two hope to work into the consular service by way of the W. P. A.! We love the old Alma Mater, sure, but Life Marches On! (Exeunt).

Pres. S. C. L. (as Deans M. C., C. L. and Laude mop relieved brows and make bleating noises). Come along to the S. A. B. I'll set you all up to a Bromo Seltzer!

Campus Views

How blest is he who crowns in shades like these,
A youth of labor with an age of ease!

—Oliver Goldsmith

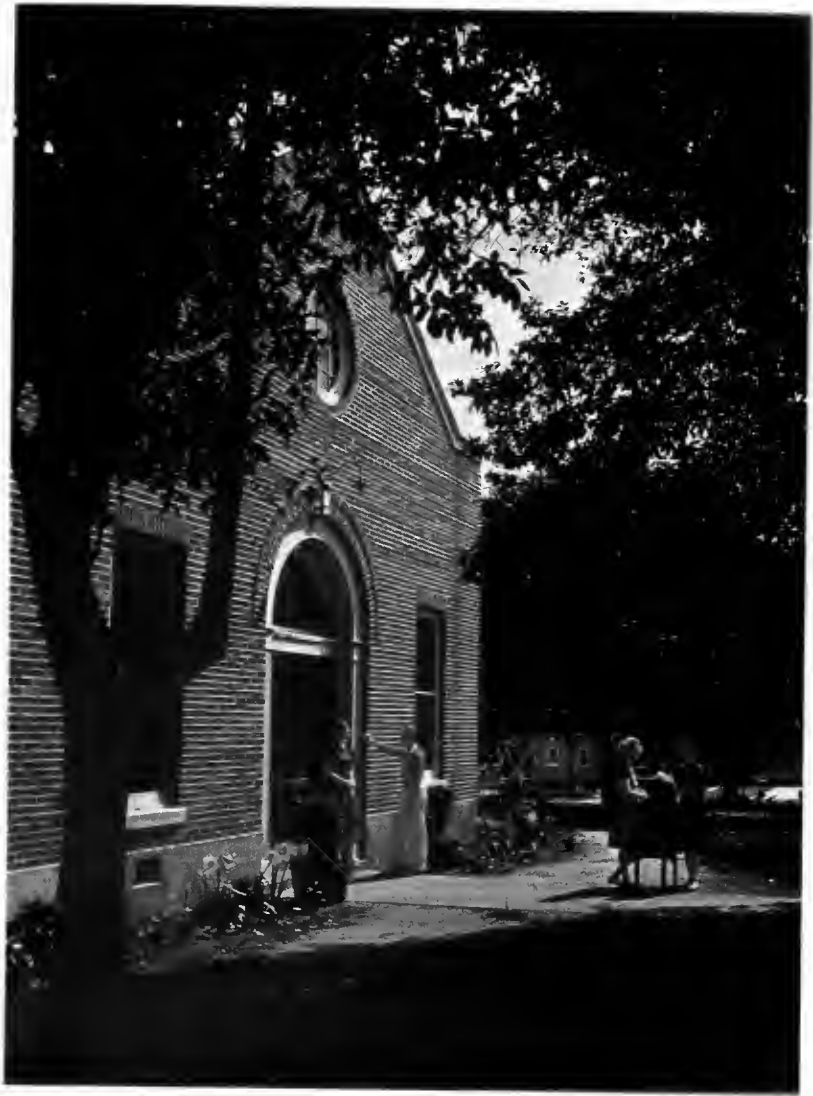

Arches of the wing of Joseph-Reynolds Hall frame the circle and the Grecian Urn, a memorial to Allan Spivey.

Edge Hall, situated on the terrace of south campus, overlooks Lake Hollingsworth.

Facing towards the west, the porch of Joseph-Reynolds Hall fronts on the construction of Pfeiffer Chapel.

Jackson Student Activity Building offers to the students a paradise for leisure hours.

The flower garden behind the President's Home is the ground for one of his hobbies.

Men working on the roof of the building.

Looking from the west to the south of Pfeiffer Chapel as the walls for the ground floor near completion.

Most recent completed building added to the campus - the children's water building which is used by the children of the laboratory school.

On the 14th of November, 1947, the nationally-wide organized "Chair of Democracy" was dedicated by Paul V. McNutt, white-haired Federal Securities Administrator. So did McNutt in the College chapel before a crowd of 1,000 people. "Democracy is in danger less from abroad than from uncleanliness within."

CHAIR OF

Among the nineteen prominent men who participated in the celebration was Dean William F. Russell of the Teachers College, Columbia University. Russell, leader of a recent world Congress on Democracy, made the opening address here.

Father Robert J. White, dean of Catholic University, Washington, D. C., joined with Bishop Paul B. Fern and Rabbi Morris Lazaron in a forum discussion of religion.

Part of the group of negro delegates, who attended the Congress, was headed by Dr. Paul Diggs, Lakeland negro leader, who said, "The negro does not want social equality, all he asks for is equal justice."

Commentary on the importance of religion in a democratic society. Dr. W. H. Sperry, of the Harvard Divinity School, spoke before the student body. Dr. Sperry, who was the first speaker in the series of annual lectures sponsored by the Chair of Democracy, gave five lectures discussing the meaning of religion to the present and the future.

DEMOCRACY

Florida Governor Leve E. Carlton, retired Chancellor of Florida Southern, chatting with a group of delegates to the Congress.

Returning to the campus on his way out, Rabbi Morris Lazaron of Baltimore again charmed students with his friendly laugh, declared that our attitude toward the European conflict should be colored by the realization that our fathers left Europe to get out of such conflicts.

Colin English, superintendent of public instruction in Florida, and Matt Adam, president of the Young Democrats of America, discussing the part that education can play in politics in a Democracy.

Two Men in a Boat

AN OCEANOGRAPHIC EPISODE

Dramatis Personae: Professor Solomon Wise, Cholmondelay (Chumly) Jones, a student
Scene: The Ocean (of learning).

For many days Wise and Jones have labored in the deep blue waters. The former, according to the precepts of the Navigation Committee of the Education Department, holds the tiller; the latter plies the oars. Jones' efforts may be described as spasmodic—a series of furious short hauls followed by periods of profound inaction, or else of light featherings of the blades in the scalps of the waves. Rarely, while his companion lay exhausted on the bottom of the boat, Wise has manned the oars. At no time can Jones discern the port clearly; but, Wise, having been ferried there by generations of young oarsmen, points, with many a learned comment, in its direction).

Professor Wise: Courage! Your oars will draw us shoreward soon. Yonder lies the harbor—just two assignments more. Meanwhile, I shall complete my lecture on . . .

Cholmondelay: Beg pardon, sir; I thought there was only one assignment left. My arms ache; my neck has stiffened out of shape; my hands are cracked, and, I believe, commence to bleed. Let's drift a while. The sea is terrible and wide. Besides, I'd rather rest than get to port, anyhow.

Prof. Wise: Buck up, my boy. Say not the struggle naught availeth! Land with its citted towers rises just over the rim, bathed in pearly light, and yes, there will be standing the Dean, waiting. Good old Deany! He's holding up three fingers—do you know what that means?

Cholmondelay (wearily): Faith, hope and charity, I suppose. Or maybe he plans to give me the third degree!

Prof. Wise (in kindly rebuke): Nonsense. Three credits for your work when you arrive. And he holds up a card with a "C" on it, too! Now, as I was saying, the amoeba eats with his feet—his pseudopodia, to be exact. (Shyly facetious) Hem! Every time he opens his foot he has his mouth in it.

Cholmondelay: I think I ought to have a "B".

Prof. Wise: That is a metaphysical consideration, entirely, my boy, relatively unimportant. Now just a steady pull past that island where the sirens are, avoiding the whirlpool off the north shore—that's your final examination and we'll disembark, full of experience, triumphantly! There's some seawater in the boat. I'll have just time to finish my lec—Look out—! (A large whale careens toward the boat, threatening to swamp it. A light yellow fog has meanwhile tentacled the mariners). Magnificent fellow! Mammal, you know. Viviparous. Baleen bearer. Verdigris producer when he's sick. Cholmondelay (Handling the boat with desperate daring, pulls out of danger and they approach the shore): Whales, fog, sirens, whirlpools,—I've survived them all—I'm educated! But look at my poor, bleeding hands! (He holds them out woefully).

Prof. Wise (closing his book, folding his notes and putting them in his pocket): Nature's own formula for learning, my boy. When you're an alumnus you'll be proud of your college callouses. Shall we join the Dean? (Then with hearty wit): A three-point landing, eh, Cholmondelay?

Cholmondelay (wearily stumbling up the beach): "I still think I ought to have a "B".

Sophomores

Then stately shades I seem to see,
Mistress, to companion thee;
Fielding and Horace here and come,
To lead thee to Elysium;
Last comes on all golden—
Fame,
Calls thee, Mistress, by thy name,
On thy brow the Laurel lays,
Whispers low "In After Days!"

Freshmen

You'll have to learn your ABC's,
Your Creed and Catechism,
And "duty toward," and out of these
Unravel your own "ism."

You'll have to learn the use of flame,
The friendship of cold water,
Don't be afraid; just play the game,
And never cry for quarter

You'll get the best of circumstance
By working like a beaver
And when you meet with true Romance
Be sure you never leave her.

Freshmen Class

Carrying out the tradition of former classes, the Frosh amused an audience composed of faculty and upperclassmen with their annual Freshman Frolics, staged in the gym. Rats Williams, Bullock, M. Henry, Chapman, H. Henry, Daniel and Lord broke down the barriers, aped their elders.

Elected by penny votes as king and queen of the class were Charles Pierce and Gerry Pittman. Freshman Frolics made eighty dollars for the Freshmen, Alpha Sigs being the most liberal contributors.

Personalities

There are lots of ways to be winsome,
And plenty of ways to be smart;—
But the only way to be famous
Is keeping head anchored to heart.

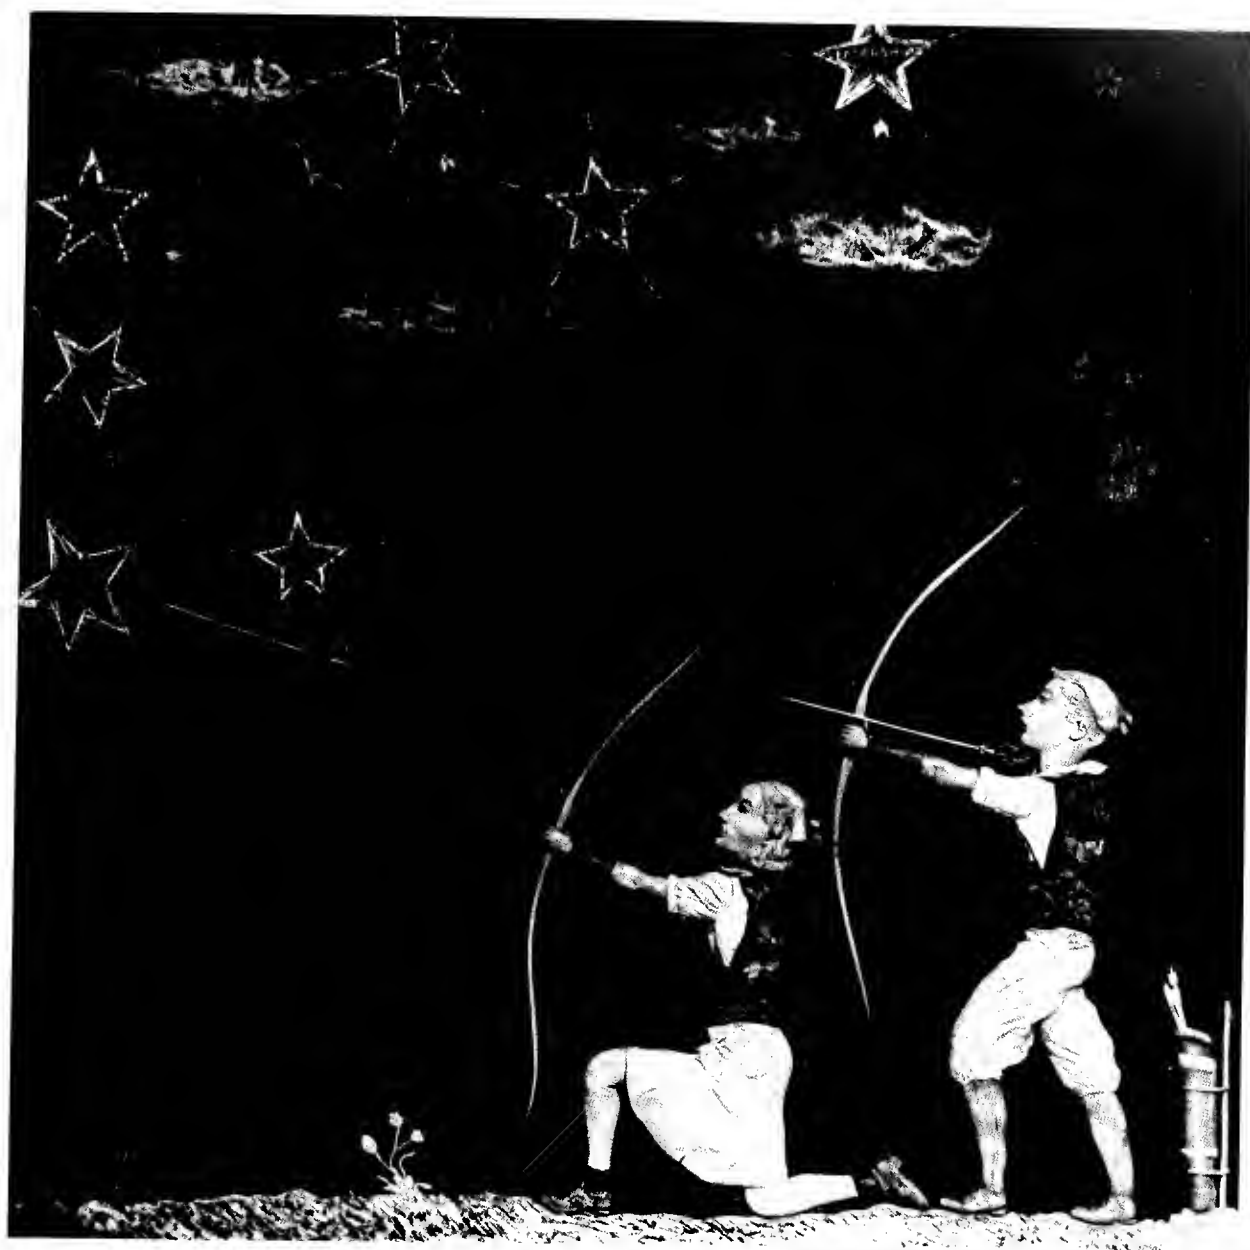

It isn't enough to be brainy,
And hardly enough to be good:—
If you can't figure out when it's rainy
You'd as well turn into wood.

There are forty-add ways to be beauteous,
And forty-odd lotions to use:—
But it's best to avoid being "snooty-ous,"
And, of course, don't be a goose!

Oh, it's fine having nice personality,
And seeing folks like you quite well:—
But they won't if you've any rascality—
Or a head quite likely to swell.

Now in this ploc we present
For all and sundry to see,
Some persons undoubtedly meant
By the gods to shine handsomely.

Ballade of the Miniature Masterpieces

The years pile up, and out of them, like stars'
Bright birth in twilight deeps, the masters rise.
Enskied above the world, no devil mars
The lucent beauty shining from their eyes.
The tiny wit of multitudes complies
(Responsive only to the bondsman's whip)
With all but Titan truth or lethal lies—
Not dull galvanic life's our goal, but mastership!

Few know that Earth's heart beats with blood of flame,
That punctual sun and moon preserve them
For nothing more than brute—besotted fame,
Or worse—not any sort of diadem.
But authors, statesmen, artists—all condemn
Designs smeared out by broad, blunt finger-tip,
And time expended on some ten-cent gem—
Not freak galvanic action lures, but mastership!

A dream resolved from the chaos of sham,
A mind's sure grasp of the god-like surmise,
The love of the artist for tiger and lamb,
The white anger born of a hatred of lies,
Activities are of the kings of emprise.
We with the hand, the heart, the brain equip
Ourselves to paint, or write, or speak—devise
Not dark galvanic dullness, but a mastership!

A major part of the debate program had to be abandoned this year but nevertheless, Sam Womack, debate manager, rates the season as being successful. The council staged ten debates; raised its standards so that future candidates must pass an oral examination on the fundamentals of debating and show ability to appear in forensic art. Fraternities and sororities were hosts to visiting debaters.

The inter-fraternity debates, won by Chi Rho, was the year's big upset, as LCA and AS spent their time pulling each other's hair, with CR slipping through to a surprise victory

Civil Aero Auth

To promote private flying and to aid and stimulate the aviation industry by teaching college students to fly, is the purpose of this federal project, brought to Southern this year by Dr. Spivey. Twenty students are enrolled for this course, which, when completed, entitles the pupils to a private pilot's license. No obligation of being enrolled in government service is incurred.

Instruction includes 72 hours ground training, 17 hours dual, and 18 hours solo flying.

In the United States 11,000 students in 300 colleges are enrolled in this training course.

"OUR TOWN"

The Vagabonds' initial production for 1939-40 was Thornton Wilder's "Our Town". Probably the best show ever presented by the Vagabonds, it was given first before an invited audience of 750 persons during the Congress on Democracy.

Dr. K. Gibson Weihe as the unforgettable stage manager was the acknowledged star of the production, but playing close seconds were Ada Coats and Don Adams.

THE POOL

"The Pool" was first published in 1939 with Carroll Teeter as editor. The anthology contained a wide variety of verse written largely by students of the college. When searching for a title that would have reality to Florida Southern College and also have a romantic connotation, Carroll finally chose "The Pool." The first volume was dedicated to the memory of Dr. Fisher.

"The Pool" for 1940 is a campus anthology composed entirely of student and faculty verse. For the second year Dr. K. Gibson Weihe is its adviser, and Tommy Mitchell is its printer. Julia Cousins illustrates the volume, with Harriet Critchlow as her assistant.

The Floor of Heaven

A PLAY ON THE YOUNGER GENUFLEXION

Euclidean Leit-motif: (In the circuit of one tiny hour the universe has contracted for Velocity Vitamin and her boy-friend, Sinew Cotangent. They are two parallel cycloid points moving with rhythmic pulsation just inside the periphery of a plane ellipse. Overhead, bearing on octagonal-conical roof covered with green octogonal scales, is a system of interwoven right and isocoles angled supports. Everything outside this Euclidean structure is in eclipse, steeped in utter dark, like the abyss of space. The skaters spin, like twin stars caught in the nebula of Andromeda. They glow, like orbs that kindle at each other's incoherence. Even the music of the spheres is caught by a sound-tortured victrola furiously blaring "O, Johnny, O, Johnny O!").

Velocity (looking up with dreamy archness): You skate divinely, Sinny, old duck. Hum...um...m (She allows her vocal chords to vibrate in unison with the cacophony escaping from the victrola's every pore).

Sinew (gazing fondly down, his rapture is poetic): This is the floor of heaven, and you're an angel I've picked up. (Then mildly outraged) Where do you get that "old duck" stuff—babe?

Velocity (still 'love-in-a-mist'): Call me angel...old duck.

Sinew: Oke, Babe...angel. (He laughs suddenly into the rafters) Angel-babe! Howzat? Angel-babe!

Velocity: Not bad, Sinny-duck. (They laugh uproariously.) That's not bad, either—"the floor of heaven." Doc Weehee would like that phrase. Spring it on him sometime, he might raise you to a D.

Sinew (the smile drains off his face): Great snakes and poppy seed, that reminds me. I gotta English test tomorrow.

Velocity (quoting): "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow
Creeps in this petty pace till the last syllable of recorded time."

Sinew (soberly): Yea, tomorrow and the petty pace! "Tate dat weary load!"

Velocity (cheerily): Oh well, tomorrow is just a metaphysical concept. Right now we're rolling in the present—rolling, rolling. (She sings "Rolling, Rolling Over the Bounding Main"). This is eternity, old duck. This is the floor of heaven we're on. "Rolling, rolling, etc."

Sinew: Yeah—(dubiously making an effort to brighten).

Velocity: Oh, cheer up. He might lecture and forget the test. (Suddenly in a giggling humor): Flat-foot Floogie on the floy, flay, Flat-foot Floogie on the floy of heaven! (She is overcome with a convulsion of laughter, loses her balance, and topples, while Sinew, by a superhuman effort and wild gyration, retains his rolling contact with the elliptical plane).

Sinew (tomorrow forgotten): Ho! Ho! fallen angel! Now who's the duck? Flat-foot Velocity on the floor of heaven! Hi! Hi! Velocity and her sprawl stroke—whee!

Velocity (her feelings a bit hurt): Come, pick me up, you quack! Take me home to Mother and the liniment bottle. (Philosophically) Pretty slippery—the floor of heaven. (Then, seeing Sinew chapfallen and serious, with the double load of tomorrow and crippled Velocity on his hands, she softens contemplatively): I hope he lectures, Sinew!—(Exeunt into the dark, their skates dangling noisily from straps around their necks.)

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Despite handicaps of tall opponents and weight disadvantages of ten to twenty-five pounds per man, Florida Southern Moccasins closed the 1939-40 basketball season with three wins out of fifteen starts. They were never outfought and gave a good account of themselves in each game.

Many of the struggles were close with Southern losing four games by the total difference of only fourteen points. The outstanding game on the home court was the clash with the Alabama Teachers, Jacksonville, Ala. Trailing by 17 points at the half, the Mocs, led by Doug Scarbro, came to life and tied up the fracas in the second half, but failed to tie the score by two points.

Floyd "Elmer" Lay was the nucleus of the team throughout the season and was called on to play every position on the court. Lanky Bob Smith was the most improved player on the court this year, and with Scarbro and Hendrix, will be sorely missed next season. Outlook for the 1940-41 version of the Mocs is promising with Freshmen Pierce, Koegel, Woods and Kirkland to replace the seniors.

TOUCH FOOTBALL

Continuing on the winning streak that they started last year, the Alpha Sigma "A" team won their first major championship of the 1939-40 season. With Lay passing and Biddle, Pace, Hendry or Mitchell receiving, the "A's" won most of their games easily. Best game of the year was with the Barbarians, which the "A's" won by a single touchdown as the result of a penalty. The "A's" kept their goal line uncrossed throughout the season.

This year's program was marked by the improvement of the other teams in the league, notably the Chi Rho Lions

HORSESHOES

The nag-slipper competition was brought to a close with the Alpha Sig "A" team winning another championship. Barbarians finished a good second, nearly upsetting the highly favored Alps.

In the individual tournament, Floyd "Elmer" Lay defeated Chubby Fulton. Lay eliminated Bob Smith in the semi-finals and Fulton reached the last bracket by an upset victory over first-seeded Bud Pace.

VOLLEYBALL

Upset by the Barbarians in their first clash, the Alps, led by rangy Bob Smith with his overhead spikings, came back to take the second match, the trophy, and their third championship. This was made possible through the work of their "little brothers" who came through with an upset of their own when they conquered the over-confident Barbs.

SHUFFLEBOARD

Closest race of the season came in shuffleboard, with Lambda Chi Alpha outshuffling Chi Rho and Alpha Sigma in post-season matches.

In the individual tournament Ed Wilson of the A's defeated teammate Bob Marshall to take the winner's cup.

BASKETBALL

In a season that saw the teams slowed up because of the ruling that varsity players could not play on the intramural teams the Alpha Sigs, led by Curry, Pace and Shepherd, went through an undefeated season, marched toward a grand slam of the team trophies for the intramural sports. They were followed by the Lambda Chis, Independents, and Chi Rhos. While there was never any doubt after the first few games as to the winner, all games were much more even than in several years past.

TENNIS

Entries included such stars of former years as Smith, Roberts, Purcell, Thacker, Behrens and others. After coasting through their preliminary matches Smith and Roberts reached the finals which were taken by Smith, 6-8; 8-6; 6-0; 10-8.

Led by the season's top doubles team of Smith and Marshall the Alpha Sigma "A" team continued their domination of intramural sports by taking the tennis trophy. The title was in doubt until the final match which brought the "A's" and Lambda Chis together. The "A's" won 6-1; 4-6; and 6-0.

Looming as pre-season favorites on the softball horizon were Alpha Sigma A's, who trounced the Independents 7-1 in the second game of the season

Opening game between the B's and Chi Rho's was won 14-8 by the B's, whose lead was threatened but never overcome. B's lost to Lambda Chi Alpha in the next game, 18-13. The deadline for copy came before any more games were played

Co-eds opened their court battles against Rollins College, upheld their last year's record of no defeats by downing the Rollins sextet, 22-20. The Rollins squad, playing on their home court, kept pace with the Moccasinettes so closely that victory was never certain until the final whistle. Tampa University, next on the schedule, fell before the power of the Long-led Southern co-eds. Last games of the season were with Lakeland High School, with Southern easily winning, 35-16 and 47-12. Moccasinettes look forward to more collegiate games next year.

VOLLEYBALL

Intramurals opened for women with Kappa Gamma Tau downing Theta Chi Beta and the Delta Zetas upsetting the Independents in three games, 4-15, 17-15, and 15-2. Best game of the entire volleyball season was between Delta Zeta and Alpha Chi Omega in the second round. Delta Zeta nosed out a victory, 15-9, 10-15, 16-14. After this defeat, Alpha Chi tightened its defense, lost no more games, and won the season trophy.

ELVA LONG
Norwegian Baseball Manager

NORWEGIAN BASEBALL

At the end of the first round Independents and Alpha Chis were tied for first place. Theta Chi Beta won their first game of the season by defeating the Delta Zetas in the second round by one point when Bea Bonhus failed by two steps to tie the score. ACO again took first place, with KGT runner-up. All-star team as picked by the intramural board was composed of Erma Whittle, Lorena Long, Nellie Weaver, Elizabeth Tyler, Lella Rice, Peggy Edwards, Bea Bonhus, Nancy Moody, and Helen Davison.

BADMINTON

Badminton, intramural's youngest sport, gained many followers as co-eds "watch-the-birdie" fly back and forth across the net. Competition was close throughout this sport with a three-way tie among the KGT, Ind., and ACO resulting.

Individual finals were a review of last year, with Lorena Long again winning over Nellie Weaver for the individual trophy.

SPEEDBALL

Kappa Gamma Tau eked out a one-point victory over the Alpha Chi Omega to open the speedball season. Kappa Gams scored the winning goal in the last minutes of play to win by a 9-8 count. The Collier twins' teamwork was excellent for KGT; Lorena Long and Erma Whittle were outstanding for Alpha Chi. Tri Zetas introduced their first team in this sport; beat the Theta Chis in their first game. Most exciting contest in the speedball season took place when the Alpha Chis and the Delta Zetas kicked to a tie; played this off in an extra three minutes with the Alpha Chis scoring two touchdowns to win the game. Only one round of this sport was played. Kappa Gams took first place with the Alpha Chis trailing second.

NELLIE WEAVER
Foul-Shooting Champion

PING-PONG

The Kappa Gam racket artists upset the Alpha Chis in the final set to take the ping-pong championship. This tournament was full of upsets as the weaker Theta Chis and Tri Zetas won over some of the stronger teams.

Lella Rice became the women's ping-pong champion by defeating Lorena Long, thrice winner. Lella failed to reach the finals last year, but pulled herself into a top place this year.

BARBARA COLLAR

LELLA RICE

BASKETBALL

Opening the season with a win over the Theta Chis, the Independents were on the way to becoming a definite threat to the Alpha Chi championship. Tightest game of the season occurred when the Tri Zetas came from behind to tie the Delta Zetas 8-8. Barbara Old, Collier twins, Laretha Lord, Cannie Harvey, Mary Bow and Jessie Withrow were newcomers furnished by the freshman class. Alpha Chis and Independents met in the last game undefeated, but Alpha Chi took the game to end the season with a perfect record.

In foul shooting, which followed basketball, the Independents captured first place, with the Kappa Gams placing as runner-up, when Nellie Weaver totaled 33 out of 50 free throws, defeating Peggy Edwards in the individual contest by one point.

SUE ELLA CASON
Basketball Manager

SHUFFLEBOARD

By defeating the Tri Zetas 52-41 and 51-50 the Alpha Chis won the shuffleboard title for this year. The Tri Zetas took second place.

Among the first losers in the individual shuffleboard matches was Erma Whittle, last year's winner. Helen Davison defeated her and went on to take first place.

ELIZABETH TYLER
Softball Manager

SOFTBALL

That editorial nightmare, the deadline, finds the women's softball season still unopened. We predict an exciting season with Tri Zetas entering their first softball team; with Elizabeth Tyler, the Independents' most valuable pitcher, in good form; and the hard-hitting Alpha Chis ready to knock the cover off any pitched balls. Seniors look forward to a fourth annual clash between Alpha Chi Omega and the Independents in the finals.

PAT COLLIER
Tennis Champion

TENNIS

Kappa Gamma Tau was ceded first among sorority netters because of the outstanding drives and volleys of the Collier twins, but the Independents won the opening match and were well on their way to upset the ceded players. As net games progressed, the Alpha Chis yielded last year's top position to the Independents and Kappa Gams. These undefeated teams battled through three sets, Independents out-steadying the Kappa Gams to win the match, 0-6, 7-5, 6-3, and the title.

ELIZABETH CALLAWAY

ARCHERY

New honors were won in archery, when Southern entered a state-wide Columbia round among college women, and took second place. Another second place was won by the feminine Robin Hoods at Stetson's play day.

Intramural champion was Alpha Chi Omega. Helen Davison was individual winner; Nellie Weaver and Lorena Long were second and third place winners.

"Taught to the tune of a hickory stick"

IN your grandfather's time, the hickory stick and the dunce cap were integral parts of the educational system. But today, education has become more civilized. It uses new methods to get better results. And cheap utility service is like that too . . . it is as modern as today . . . as new as tomorrow. Modern education raises the mental standard; cheap utility service raises the "better living" standard. As public servants we are constantly striving to provide a better, more dependable and cheaper service. Call on us anytime.
